Industrial Hygiene Services
Ensuring a healthy workplace for your valued employees

Business Challenge
Preventing illness, improving processes, and achieving regulatory compliance hinges on accurately evaluating and addressing employee exposures to occupational health hazards. Effective industrial hygiene programs protect worker health, improve productivity, and support your business goals.

Solution
What are Industrial Hygiene Services?
We leverage our expertise in OSHA, ANSI, and other industry standards to evaluate existing IH procedures, policies, and programs – developing relevant recommendations that reduce redundancies, speed projects, and reduce costs. Bureau Veritas also develops long-term strategies to assure continuous compliance, improve processes, and support best management practices.

With industry experience ranging from foundries to aerospace manufacturers and from small businesses to corporate giants, we can quickly pinpoint and deliver practical, client-specific solutions for a healthier workplace. By developing relationships with our clients that are based on trust, responsibility, technical expertise, and efficiency, Bureau Veritas provides effective solutions to both immediate and long-term IH issues.

What are the key benefits?
• Sound, reliable recommendations for a healthier workplace.
• Fast response and national coverage for large clients.
• Increased reliability and relevance of recommendations, reduces redundancies, and speeds projects.
• Achieves regulatory compliance while maintaining optimum production levels and best management practices.
• Services that are tailored and responsive to clients’ processes, operations, business, and industry.
• Business-specific, worker appropriate solutions, even in unique facilities and industries.

Why Choose Bureau Veritas?
Experience  For over 50 years, Bureau Veritas has been evaluating occupational hazards, delivering sound, reliable solutions to make workers – and workplaces – safer and healthier. Through a strong understanding of the relationship between works, equipment, processes, and potential sources of exposure we help clients anticipate, recognize, evaluate, and control workplace health hazards.

Expertise Our highly-skilled and dedicated IH professionals help businesses achieve compliance with federal, state, and local occupational health regulations.

Network The worldwide Bureau Veritas network has over 47,000 employees with 1000 offices worldwide.
Our Approach

Every client’s needs are unique due to the varying industries, types of facilities, client specializations, and regulatory requirements which Bureau Veritas encounters. Our approach for addressing all of these issues and providing a client-specific implementation can be briefly described as follows:

Evaluation of occupational hazards
Occupational hazards are assessed to determine the best approach to meet the regulatory requirements related to the client’s industry, workplace characteristics, and exposure materials. Based on this information, a client-specific strategy is devised and put into motion.

Implementation
The implementation utilizes Bureau Veritas’ expertise in OSHA, ANSI, and other industry standards to utilize Industrial Hygiene procedures and policies that achieve a safe workplace with minimal cost and time investments, and long-term strategies are put into place to ensure compliance and a safe work environment into the future.

Reporting
Reporting is customized based on the type of strategies being put in place, and client characteristics, such as number of facilities, duration of project, and long-term goals. Written reports compare the assessment results with regulatory requirements to provide a frame of reference, and in cases of large projects, reports can be provided to clients in a searchable database to allow viewing of exposure results by facility type, location, job classifications, etc.

FAQ
How long have you been providing IH services?
Bureau Veritas, and its qualified professionals, have been providing Industrial Hygiene services for companies, large and small, for over 50 years. With certified staff in all fields of workplace health and safety, Bureau Veritas has the expertise to provide all of your Industrial Hygiene needs.